Maurizio Pasta

Maurizio
Il Pastaio Artigianale

Artisan Pasta

Maurizio Artisan Pasta is produced in the Campania region of Southern Italy, combining the finest Italian semolina with traditional methods of pasta production. The dough is kneaded slowly to ensure the precise consistency. Once the pasta is shaped, it is dried over time at a low temperature, allowing it to dry properly and maintain proper form. This time-honored pasta-making process is what makes Maurizio Artisan Pasta unlike any other.

Maurizio Pasta

Originating in Naples, Bucatini are long strands of pasta that are pierced through the middle. The thickness of the pasta allows it to hold up in heavier sauces. Traditionally, bucatini are most notable for being prepared with Amatriciana sauce.

Orecchiette, or “little ears, were traditionally made by sliding the dough down a fork, forming a round “ear” like shape. The texture on the outside, along with the hollow middle, make it perfect for tomato and vegetable based sauces

Long, flat ribbons of pasta formed into a nest, Nidi Pappardelle originated in central Italy, in the Tuscany region. Each nest catches the sauce, making them excellent with just about any variety of sauce.
